Michael might be teaming up with his brothers for a string of US gigs

After weeks of speculation and rumours it seems The Jackson Five will now reunite for a string of gigs in America.

Michael Jackson's aides are apparently in the final negotiations of a £250 million deal that will see the troubled star joining his four brothers on stage, reports the Daily Mail.

The Jackson Five, who have not performed together for 23 years, are apparently lined up to play 250 gigs in Las Vegas over three years, with further concerts planned around the US and the world.

Michael and his brothers were reported to be in negotiations with producer Jack Wishna, who took Celine Dion to Caesar's Palace, and former Spice Girls manager Simon Fuller.

A source told the paper: "There were concerns over whether Michael would be keen on performing in front of a large audience after so long away from the stage.

"So a plan was hatched to get the rest of the family tied into a deal first.

"They were offered a deal to reform - for a much smaller payday - and were told if they got Michael on board, the figure would skyrocket.

"Initially there will be a best of album, two new tracks will be recorded, there will be the stint in Las Vegas, then the US and the world."

Michael's attorney Brian Oxman has confirmed negotiations were under way but said any figures were "totally preliminary".
